From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30—Wm B Hoover, a well known citizen of Gilroy, committed suicide at the Cosmopolitan Hotel by shooting himself through the head with a pistol. He had been greatly depressed in spirits on account of business troubles. He was a partner of Mr Culp of San Jose engaged in the business [illegible] raising tobacco at Gilroy. He left a letter addressed to his wife but it is in the possession of the coroner and its contents unknown.

WITCH BURNING IN MEXICO

A SINGULAR EXHIBITION FOR THE NINETEENTH CENTURY—A FATHER AND SON ROASTED

The following is the official report of the burning of witches in Mexico by Moreno dated Jacobo April 10th:

On the morning of the 7th of this month the witches Diego Lugo and his son G Porras were executed in the public square of this place, having failed to cure the bewitched Sylvester Lacarras as they had compromised themselves to do. They were to have been executed on the night of the 6th. The execution was ordered at 10 o'clock at night the witches being placed in the center of a bonfire and a square being formed of sixty men armed with Mexican knives.

The place itself was then encircled, when it was ordered that the persons who had at different times assisted the witches should light the fire, which was done immediately. Soon after the fire had commenced to blaze the witches cried out "Mr Judge put out the fire and we will give up our idols!"

An order was given and immediately carried out to extinguish the fire and loosen the witches whereupon the multitude present, [illegible] Damian Ferula to proceed with the witches to their houses and receive their idols which they offered to give up which was done the latter handing over a little pouch-shaped loadstone and stones from the sea enveloped in cotton and paper which were deposited in the Court. At the same time the witches denounced as accomplice Joseph M Mendoza, Francis Mendoza and their father Rafael Mendoza. The people indignant at such acts asked that the execution of the witches and the burning of the idols which they had presented should be carried out which was done as I have already announced. In the moment of his burning the witch Geronimo Lor[illegible] told his mother to give up the other three idols shaped like monkeys which she had. Diego would not give them up.

She looked frowningly upon her son for having done this. He then denounced the daughter, Dionicia, calling upon her to give up idols but she also refused. The witch Joseph N Bonilla was held in order that he might cure the bewitched Sylvester Lacarras he having offered to bring medicines to cure such evils. I send the burned idols for your examination. In regard to the cure of the bewitched I will advise you in due time.

The case was a very [illegible] M Prefect, but necessary in order to restrain the evils which are being committed from time to time, for notwithstanding the execution I learned yesterday that the accused Joseph M Mendoza said that sooner or later he would pay for all this. So you see M Prefect the scoffing of such persons but in the meantime I have taken my precautions."

CALIFORNIA PACIFIC

GERMAN BONDHOLDERS ALARMED—DO STANFORD AND CO MEAN REPUDIATION?—AN EXPLICIT PROTEST BY A FRANKFURT [illegible] JOURNAL

S. F. Bulletin, June [illegible]

The following article from the [illegible] Handels-Blatt, Frankfort on the Main will be read with general interest. It will be seen that the German holders of California Pacific bonds are equally alarmed and indignant:

The California Railroad having [illegible] remained intact is also on the point of entering the list of repudiating associations. This news received in [illegible] by telegraph from New York and from a reliable source did not fail to make a lively impression in financial circles. It was generally thought before [illegible] in consequence of repeated assurance of the houses and institutions which introduced the respective values in this market, that the California railroad by virtue of their solid administration were as favorably distinguished from the lines of the Eastern States as the California State administration distinguished itself from the financial condition of most of the Southern States. This confidence has first been shaken by the catastrophe of the Oregon railroad which though not a California enterprise has nevertheless been managed by the same California agents, bankers and trustees who introduced in the German market the bonds of the California Pacific Railroad. The part suspension of payment of this latter line, now officially notified, has caused general excitement particularly on account of its connection with the Central Pacific. The whole proceeding furnishes a characteristic insight into the relations and the administration of the Central Pacific Railroad in which German capital is so largely engaged that we consider ourselves bound to enter into a more minute explanation.

The California Pacific Railroad was started in 1868. The main line formed the oldest and most direct line in connecting San Francisco with Sacramento city where it joined the great transcontinental line of the Central Pacific. This railroad has a length of sixty miles between Sacramento and Vallejo and the part from Vallejo to San Francisco (23 miles) is made by steam ferries which since some years also belong to the Central Pacific Railroad Company. It is thus evident that such a line must be of importance to the Central Pacific of which it keeps the key. The Directors of the Central Pacific Railroad Company recognized this importance from the start. They first tried to oppose that line by a competing line (the Western Pacific) which runs from San Francisco round the bay and via Stockton to Sacramento. But this line is 128 miles long which increases the distances from Sacramento to San Francisco 45 miles. It was consequently not astonishing that in spite of the same or even a cheaper fare most of the passengers gave preference to the California Pacific line. Failing in their effort to turn the trade by a competing line, the Central Pacific made the greatest efforts to get the California Pacific under their control. In this they did not succeed in the beginning because the California Pacific Railroad, being cheaply built gave too sure and considerable a rent to make it desirable to join a company the future of which appeared at that time rather uncertain. The Directors of the Central Pacific then tried to gain their object in a different way. They set 2000 laborers to work as if they intended to build a second line from Sacramento to Vallejo running alongside the California Pacific. By this stroke the Directors of the California Pacific were overawed, and disposed of the majority of their shares in consideration of $1 500 000 second mortgage bonds warranted by the Central Pacific. Since then both companies are under the same administration. No fusion took place but the same persons are at the head of both and they form actually but one set. The San Francisco office of the California Pacific has ceased and its business is transacted in the offices of the Central Pacific together with that of the main line.

HOW STANFORD AND CO MANAGE THINGS

The manner in which the Directors of the Central Pacific Messrs Stanford and Huntington now managed the line thus brought under their control will give a key to their management of the affairs of the Central Pacific and be a measure for the confidence which these gentlemen must inspire. It is first to be said that the California Pacific as long as it managed its business independently regularly published its entries which yielded a large surplus but since this line fell into the hands of Messrs Stanford and Huntington neither their entries nor their annual reports have been published. The heading of California Pacific has even disappeared entirely from Poor's Manual for several years probably on account of the impossibility to get any information from the present leaders. In 1869 when the California Pacific Railroad Company still acted independently they had commenced work on two branch lines of 110 miles to unite the main line with the fertile northerly river valleys, and three and a half millions of dollars had been issued in extension bonds warranted by the California Pacific. In reference thereto the prospectus printed by the house of [illegible] & Co by order of the bank of [illegible] and Sulzbach Brothers reads thus:

"The California Pacific Railroad Company warranting due compliance with all the obligations of the Extension Company and being interested in this new line on account of its connection with the most fertile districts and the increase of transit trade through the California Pacific Railroad connects the cities of San Francisco and Sacramento and forms the most direct route between California and New York. This company has a shares capital of $3 500 000 and a first mortgage debt of $2,250 000 on which it has to pay an annual interest of $157 500 in gold, while its monthly net income amounts to $60 000 in gold and even $3 000 per day according to the latest news. A close calculation makes it nearly certain that the net income will be for the year ending July 1st 1871 at least one million dollars in gold thus offering the best guarantee for the compliance with its obligations—the company being only bound to pay the $157 500 interest on its mortgage debt."

These bonds are signed by Mr Milton S Latham director of the London and San Francisco Bank as trustee of the said company. The three and a half millions bonds were easily disposed of at Frankfort by virtue of such real and personal guarantee. What we have since heard of the extension line has not been particularly favorable. It appears that beyond the forty miles already built in 1869 (Vallejo to Calistoga, five miles; Davisville to Marysville, thirty five miles) not much more has been done and even these forty miles are not entirely working. The inundation of 1871 caused much damage, and even the main line suffered thereby. However the latter has long been repaired and even better sheltered against a future rise of the water. Mr M Meyer, publisher of the New York [illegible] Herald gives the following report of said line in describing his late trip to the Pacific: "I was agreeably surprised to find this railroad generally in good condition and with much traffic. The residents of San Francisco and Sacramento provided they are not bound to visit a station on the Western Pacific Railroad make use exclusively of the California Pacific line. We started from Vallejo with two passenger cars well filled, received a further contingent at the road stations of which Bridgeport, Fairfield, Vaca Dixon and Davisville are the most important, and left about as many at those places. The country is well cultivated all along this line and resembles a large garden."

Now if such a railroad yielded already in 1869 a net income of $3 000 per day or $1 000 000 per year why should the same not give in 1874 at least $400 000 without regard to the branch lines, the traffic on the Central Pacific having increased considerably, the above being the whole amount necessary for paying the interest on the first mortgage and extension bonds? These facts alone are evidence enough to show that Messrs Huntington and Stanford's aiming at repudiation is not soundly based and the further facts which we are going to mention furnish a clear proof that this is one of those tricks so well understood by American railroad men.

THE LONDON LOAN

In the year 18[illegible] the company made a loan in [illegible] of 10 per cent [illegible] Frederick Wood [illegible] This transaction is actually only a kind of advance on income; the bonds were taken at par and paid to be redeemed in six yearly payments till 1878. Two terms have already been paid. These bonds were not publicly emitted but privately taken as a good investment and mostly sold in Germany. In the contract drawn up in reference to this loan it has been specially determined that the said amount should be used:

1. For the purchase of steam ferries to run between San Francisco and Vallejo. (A statement published at the time mention that the steamers [illegible] cleared a profit of one per cent per month.)

2. For the purchase of the Petaluma line [illegible] business to secure the California Pacific against competition inside of its proper field.

[illegible] special security for the mortgage bond and should become the property of the extension as soon as [illegible] be paid thus increasing its security.

But how have Messrs Stanford and Huntington complied with this agreement? They have meanwhile sold the Petaluma line for $1 000 000 and again mortgaged the steamer ferries disposing in this manner unlawfully of all the securities of the income bonds. After having executed this master piece they want the owners of extension and income bonds to pay for all. However we are convinced that this time the owners will not allow themselves to be cheated. This is not an enterprise void of traffic and entries, compelling the interested parties to content themselves—faute de mieux—with a meagre settlement. In this instance there is undoubtedly an intentional [illegible] at the bottom depriving the creditors of the income of a good line and finally disposing of and mortgaging the existing surplus.

MR LATHAM ASKED A QUESTION

We are thus compelled to put the question: Why has Mr Latham, the trustee of the German creditors and Director of the San Francisco Bank to whom all these facts must have been known long ago concealed them so obstinately though repeatedly asked for information? We wonder to know what will be his answer. Should such an answer not be satisfactory then the bond owners would have a right to look for indemnity also in those quarters. We cannot suppose that the [illegible] of a trustee should not be [illegible] in some obligations but merely [illegible] the bondholders big commissions for [illegible] those bonds.

WHAT THE CREDITORS SHOULD DO

However the first steps of the creditors ought to be directed against the Central Pacific which by virtue of the abovementioned facts is lawfully and morally bound to consider all the bonds of the California Pacific as a debt of their own. Should the threatened repudiation actually take place, then the owners of Central Pacific bonds may learn what they have to expect in the future. As long as there remains any spare money in Germany the role of an honest man is played; the entries and flattering reports are published to decoy as many fools as possible but as soon as the last bond is sold Messrs Stanford and Huntington show their true character, which is nothing better than that of Holladay and [illegible]. You will know them by their fruits.

LETTER FROM FORT LAPWAI

FORT LAPWAI, I T, June 23, 1874

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

On Thursday the 18th inst General Jeff C Davis, Colonel F V Sumner, Dr Wiggin and Major Kress arrived at this post and on the 21st inst accompanied by Colonel George H Sanford, Lieutenant Robert Fletcher and Mr Fred Sanford with [illegible] mounted and six Government wagons left here for Fort Colville, Coeur d'Alene and other portions of Idaho and Washington Territories intending to return here about the [illegible] of next month. I am informed that Mr Levi Ankeny accompanied them also.

ACCIDENT TO LIEUT SHELTON

Just as the expedition was leaving here quite a serious accident occurred to Lieut Shelton who intended to accompany the party. When within about [illegible] of the post and while in the act of dismounting his horse suddenly wheeled, kicking him and breaking his right leg between the ankle and knee. He was immediately conveyed to his room where under the skillful treatment of Drs Wiggin and Sumner the fracture was reduced, and he is now quite comfortable and is doing as well as possible.

The mounted command crossed the Clearwater near the Indian Agency and the wagons crossed at Lewiston.

INDIANS [illegible]

The Indians in the vicinity of [illegible] Valley and through that part of the country generally are getting to be quite troublesome and have been tearing down the settlers' fences, destroying their grain and committing other depredations and some of the settlers are really alarmed at [illegible] the Indians. Gen Davis and command will visit the scene of trouble on their way to Colville.

The non-treaty Indians south from here under [illegible] and Joseph, Red Heart and other chiefs are giving the Indian Agent (Mr Monteith) trouble. They refuse to recognize him as their Agent and refuse to be removed up on the reservation and I understand in his visit among them last week they more forcibly than politely told him not to come among them. I hear they made some serious threats against him should he do so and on the 20th inst he made application to Gen Davis for [illegible] and two more companies of troops, one under command of Maj John Green and one under Capt David Perry have been ordered to proceed at once to this upper country. Major Green's command to join Gen Davis at the Spokan and Captain Perry to this Post to render any assistance the Indian Agent may require and to protect the settlers south from here and also in the Wallowa Valley. Gen Davis informed me that Capt Perry would be here about the 2d of July and start at once on the scout so we may look out for lively times should the Indians still continue their depredations north from here and non-treaty south from here still maintain their hostile attitude. Should anything important occur in the meantime will let you know.

Weather is delightful and the prospect for crops favorable.

The President is reported as having signed the bill to [illegible] rights of the Hudson Bay Company within the limits of the award by the Emperor of Germany under the Washington treaty. This relates to the island of San Juan and contiguous smaller islands which the Emperor William declared United States territory under the provision of the treaty of 1846. Previous to the settlement of the Pacific Coast by the United States the Hudson's Bay Company held almost autocratic sway over the entire shore of the Pacific. The Company had trading posts in Oregon, British Columbia and even in California. The treaty of 1846 settling the Oregon difficulty, drove the Company out of that State, but it retained its posts in San Juan during the joint occupancy of the island. The Hudson's Bay Company ceased some four years ago to be anything but a trading concern, all its territorial rights having been purchased by Great Britain for a good round sum. After the declaration of the Emperor's award almost the whole of the British subjects on San Juan took the initiatory proceedings toward becoming naturalized citizens of this country. The Hudson's Bay Company not being a person, the only way in which it could recover anything from the United States for the loss of possessory rights is by the method adopted by Congress.

PERSONAL.—Washington, June 24—Luttrell leaves to-night for California direct. The other Pacific coast members will not start for a few days.

The industrious habits of the grasshopper will preclude the necessity of much toil on part of the farmers in harvesting their grain fields this year.

One Bartholomew went to a school house near Seattle and thence eloped with one of the school girls. It is supposed that they have gone Eastward.

Geologist Condon is in King county W T, to stay a few days for the purpose of examining the various coal mines for geological specimens and scientific purposes.

Says the [illegible]: "The two men who were taken down with the smallpox at Fairview last week are getting better, and no more new cases have been developed."

The San Juan Islands are proving to be equal to any part of the Pacific as a wool growing country. The shipments from them this year will be at least 300 000 pounds.

The Indians on the upper Missouri are becoming civilized. Two bashful maidens suicided at Fort Buford last week. They said they were tired working only for whisky.

Mr Hewes of the Seattle Coal Mines, has a model for a scow of large dimensions for Lake Union to facilitate and enlarge the transportation business. It is called the Mud Turtle.

It is estimated that the yield of gold this season will be at least twenty per cent greater than last owing mainly to the opening of new mines and the improved appliances in mining machinery.

Delegate Hailey has secured an appropriation for the survey of Snake river from Shoshone Falls to Lewiston with a view of ascertaining the cost of removing the obstructions to navigation.

In less than sixty days the telegraph line from Winnemucca will be in full operation to Silver City. If the people of Boise want the line continued to that place they must subscribe $10 000.

Inspector Hammond is making a model and specifications for a steamer for coal transportation from the Renton Mines to Seattle. The intention is to have it ready for use in six weeks at the farthest.

According to the Idaho World some Chinamen in the employ of the Buena Vista Bar Company cleaned the flume up lately in the absence of the watchman and it is thought got away with about $2,000.

A camp meeting held by the United Brethren on Mill creek near Walla Walla was unceremoniously brought to a close last week because the brethren were not united on some doctrinal points promulgated by one of their number.

Lyman Norton reported appointed Register of the Bismarck Land Office—is a fraud. His name is not Lyman Norton, he is not appointed Register of the Bismarck office but Luman Norton Judd is appointed Register of some office in Dakota possibly the Springfield office. The telegraph made a mistake.

On Thursday of last week as Albert Henderson a farmer who resides on Mill Creek about six miles from Walla Walla was driving home his pistol dropped from his belt and striking against one of the wagon wheels exploded, the ball passing through the fleshy part of Henderson's right thigh and into his arm.

In Denver they fine a man $100 for bringing Limburger cheese into the city. Here there is no punishment except for the consumer. He is compelled to sleep alone for a week; the careful servants halloo scat when they go into the room where he is sitting, the old ladies offer him recipes warranted to cure a bad breath.

It is reported that the Yakima river will prospect anywhere from the mouth of Swauk up from 3 to 5 cents to the pan of dirt and many of the boys are rocking out from $2 50 to $4 25 per day. Several parties are preparing to put in wing dams and flumes begin to look up. Some rather flattering prospects have been obtained.

The telegraph line between Montana and Corinne is in a most wretched condition and has in fact become a perfect nuisance. The poles are nearly all rotten, and nothing short of the reconstruction of the whole line will insure anything like regularity in the transmission of dispatches. The owners of the line claim that the receipts therefrom do not justify them in rebuilding it.

George Bellheimer, an unfortunate prisoner on his way to Pembina Manitoba, to attend the recent term of court there jumped from the hurricane deck of one of the Red river steamers while handcuffed and rescued a drowning child. He proved himself a brave man, gained the sympathy of everybody, proved himself, in court innocent of the crimes with which he was charged and is now free and happy.

From the Dispatch of June 25th: Capt Battersby, Agent and Engineer of the Cedar Mountain Coal Mine returned to this city this (Friday) morning. The cause of his immediate return was the loss by the wreck of the [illegible] Alfred of the coal being taken to San Francisco as specimens of the quality of the mine. Pending negotiations were consequently suspended till other specimens could be procured which is the object of Capt Battersby's present visit.

On the 13th of June a large body of Indians approached Fort Berthold, Dakota, and hiding themselves behind some hills sent out a small party to attack the Agency. This party as was expected drew out a small force from the Agency who attacked the Sioux, routed them and gave them chase following them into an ambuscade in which five of the Agency Indians were killed, one mortally wounded and one seriously. The attacking force is supposed to be the 400 Sioux who left Cheyenne some time ago.

Frederick Moy the soldier confined in the lock up at Fort Boise for the killing of John Lee escaped therefrom June 2d. Moy and Lee came over to Boise from Camp Harney as a guard for Major [illegible] and got into a difficulty when the latter was killed. The witnesses were a part of the escort and had returned to Camp Harney and did not arrive here when the grand jury sat until after they had adjourned and no bill found but Moy was retained in custody. He effected his escape about midnight by calling the guard into his room on some excuse and taking advantage of the dark slipped out. An effort has been made to find him but as yet without avail.

The municipal tax list of the town of Olympia for 1874, shows in the corporate limits real estate valued at $406 682 and personal property assessed at $314 976, making a total of $721 058. The tax list of the county shows the real estate valuation to be $907,023, and the personal property, $640,165, making a total of $1 547,688. Thus it will be seen that Olympia will have to pay nearly half the tax of the county. The total amount of taxes as shown by the county assessment roll are: Property tax at 6 mills $[illegible] 12 and $[illegible]; poll tax or $10 402; total county tax; school tax at 4 mills $[illegible] 20, and territorial tax 4 mills $[illegible] 20. Total tax $[illegible] 84.

The Walla Walla Spirit of last Saturday says: Two men named respectively Dixon and Hefferon engaged on Wednesday in a dangerous row that came near resulting in loss of life. These men have not been long in this community and are comparatively unknown except as members of the sporting fraternity. They were partners and the difficulty grew out of aspersions on the part of one that the other had converted into a sinking fund money to which he was not entitled. The difficulty occurred in Bissette and [illegible]'s saloon on Main street. After some rough language the fight began by Dixon's drawing a revolver and beating Hefferon over the head with it. A protracted scuffle then ensued in which Hefferon finally obtained possession of the revolver and commenced firing at Dixon who hastily retreated toward the back door. Two shots were fired; on the third attempt the revolver missing fire. The first bullet flew wide of the mark, but the second is said to have come in very close proximity to Dixon's cranium. Dixon ran out through the back yard and made good his escape. Both parties were arrested.

Union county gets about $1 000 of the irreducible school fund this year.

The La Grande Sentinel, of June 27th, says it snowed on Tuesday of last week at Oro Dell.

Joseph Cornoyer son of Major Cornoyer Agent for the Umatilla Indians aged about 20 years, died a few days since at the residence of his father on the Reservation.

The "Duke of Oregon," a fine thoroughbred bull owned by Joseph Shumbaugh of La Grande died the other day after an illness of several months. The animal was worth $500 or over.

The Salem Record learns that Capt Geo W Belt of the College Club has suffered terribly with his wounded leg. It is thought, however, that the limb can be saved but he will probably never fully recover from the effects of the injury.

A miscreant near Silverton is in the habit of firing off his pistol in his neighbors' door yards and at their stock as he passes by. A few days ago he killed a valuable hog belonging to one of them out of genuine meanness. He ought to be severely dealt with or made to leave the country.

An Eastern Oregon paper says: "One day this week several families from near Summerville, Grand Ronde valley passed through town en route for the Willamette valley. They had formerly lived there and had concluded that they would return to the leeks and onions, and cucumbers, and flesh pots of Egypt."

Last Sunday, a little son of Joshua Purvine living one mile and a half west of Lincoln in Marion county, was shockingly injured. Some visitors had called and one of them left a horse in charge of this little boy, but four years of age. The horse got to bucking and the little fellow falling the animal struck him on the right leg breaking both bones below the knee and inflicting ghastly flesh wounds.

A young man by the name of J A J Casto, dropped dead last Saturday evening while engaged in a game of base ball at the Howell Prairie school house near Mr Greenwood's, in Marion county. It appears that he had struck the ball and started to run but was caught out before reaching the first base. He walked a few steps towards the fence and remarked that he did not feel well and would have to quit. He then walked to an old shed near by and fell. He never spoke and breathed but two or three times after falling.

Speaking of the storm which raged at Pendleton last week the Tribune says: "It greatly damaged the growing hay crop on James Desmain's ranch. The water rose several inches in an incredibly short space of time. Three valuable brood mares belonging to William Terbison, of Heppner were all simultaneously killed by a stroke of lightning. The wind and rain and thunder and lightning in that locality were most terrific. Several fences were blown down over on Wild Horse creek, but so far we have not heard that any human life was lost in consequence of the storm."

The Umatilla Tribune says: "From all quarters of the county we hear good reports of the crops. All kinds generally give promise of unusually large yields. Farmers have been harvesting timothy hay for several days past. But the best crop of all we believe is the wool crop. That almost invariably pans out and brings in the yellow twenties in return with less labor and more profit than any other business, so, at least, it seems to an outsider. J H Keeney, of Pilot Rock, clipped six pounds of wool from each sheep on an average and his band are not considered very extra blood, either."

On Sunday morning, about 8 o'clock the premises of Wm Johnson, who lives about seven miles south of Salem in the hills and is known as "Hudson Bay Johnson," were visited by two men who went through the house and plundered it up stairs and down. At the time Mr and Mrs Johnson were away from home and the house was in care of children who could of course, make no resistance. Mr Johnson lives only a mile and a half west of Mr Lafore's house, or rather where his house stood before it was burned Saturday night as we tell elsewhere. The supposition is that the same persons who plundered and burned Mr Lafore's house at midnight worked their way westward in the morning and paid their unholy attention to the Johnson family.

Last Sunday morning says the Record between 1 and 2 o'clock the house of Mr Lafore which is situated on the Parrish Gap road about eight miles south of Salem was burned with its contents to the ground. The window of the bedroom had been left open through which it is supposed the incendiary had thrown a lighted brand. The young men were awakened by the dense smoke, and one of them came near being suffocated. At the time there were sleeping in the house Peter, Scott and Logan Lafore all men grown. The fire was discovered in a bedroom adjacent to where they were sleeping and could not be checked but took everything within its reach burning the house, woodshed (in which was stored a lot of agricultural implements) apple house and a number of valuable fruit trees. As there had been no fire in the house during the day, it can not be but the work of an incendiary. Mr Lafore thinks his loss will be about $2 500. The building and furniture were insured for $1 200. When will this terrible carnival of murders, robberies, suicides, arsons etc that seems to be rampant in Marion county, cease?

The Pendleton Tribune says Mrs Belle Chamberlain the Spiritual lecturess had a sitting on Tuesday evening of last week in that place but no spirits manifested themselves owing to a limb of the law laughing out when a big bug lit on one of the sisters' ears. The Tribune continues: "On Wednesday afternoon however another circle was formed. This time it was private, and in due time one of the lady sisters was seized by the spirit of an Indian and made to cut up more antics than were ever dreamed of in your philosophy, Horatio. One of those who were present informs us that the lady danced a war dance and after thus acting out big Indian most admirably for some time she fell back and became rigid and motionless and that her pulse ceased to beat several minutes. But, under judicious manipulations she was ultimately restored to her normal condition, and the Indian spirit left for the 'happy hunting grounds,' we suppose. We have cyphered considerably on the problem or question—Who was this spirit?—and we have come to the conclusion that it was either the ethereal and imponderable essence of the renowned Captain Jack or that other red warrior, Pio-pio-mox mox. Probably the latter and he very likely thought that that was a good time to scalp another pale faced woman or take her to his tee-pee in the dim land of dreams.'"

WEDNESDAY MORNING JULY 1 1874

DOWN TO THE FIGURES

The Bulletin takes very much to heart the remarks of the OREGONIAN relative to the mismanagement or misappropriation of the funds for which the Government subsidy and the east side road were bonded. That paper is especially anxious to have it understood that the bonds sold do not amount to eleven millions dollars. Well we stated the exact amount ten millions nine hundred and fifty thousands of dollars, and the Bulletin will hardly dispute the correctness of the statement. That is just two hundred and ninety [illegible] hundred twenty [illegible] eleven million. We stand corrected in our round numbers only, to the tune of one [illegible] twenty!

But what became of all that money? And will the Bulletin deny the bonds reached the maximum limit allowed for every mile of the road to the California line, a large portion of which has never been so much as surveyed, while the road actually constructed reaches no further south than Roseburg and wants over one hundred and fifty miles of reaching the southern line of the State? And will it be pretended that in this transaction the people of Germany have not been swindled out of their money by being induced to invest it in bonds on more than 150 miles of a railroad that has never been commenced? And will it deny that by exactly the same operation the people of Oregon have been done out of their land grant for a road from Portland to connect with the railways of California and the people of Southern Oregon out of all the aid given them by Congress for any road whatever?

It is said these bonds were sold for 70 per cent of their par value. Will the Bulletin say that the amount realized for $10,950,000 of bonds at 70 per cent making $6,665,000, has been necessarily expended in the construction and equipment of the two hundred miles of road built? Will the Bulletin, which is the recognized organ of the builder and operator of the road, state that the necessary cost of this road was $33,33 coin per mile? We pause for a reply. And then we should like to inquire further whether this mismanagement of the funds and consequent failure of the entire enterprise, are not matters affecting so many of the German people and so vitally affecting the State of Oregon in her immediate perplexity and in her good name, as to be a proper subject of public comment and criticism?

PURIFY THE JURY

Readers of the OREGONIAN will recollect that on several occasions we have called attention to a defect in our jury system, by which the selection of juries is placed largely in the hands of those who may have personal interests to be promoted by the choice of such persons to serve on the jury as will favor themselves or their clients. At the very best the present plan has been made a means of supporting political camp followers and hangers on of the Sheriff, if not sometimes used more directly for purposes inconsistent with any fair administration of justice. This has been the case in this county as any one at all conversant with the facts will certify, and this morning we have a communication saying the same is true of other counties. We have no reason to doubt that, with only slight differences of degree every county in the State has suffered from this evil. It should be remedied by the Legislature this fall. A system that has in it such an invitation to fraudulent and corrupt practices, should not be allowed to exist a day longer than till the earliest day on which correction is possible. Of all the evils that can creep into any Government, no other is so sad to contemplate as that which corrupts the administration of the laws. The purity of the courts of justice is the last hope of an intelligent people and when that is lost there can be little else that is worth preserving.

The remedy for this defect it is not difficult to find nor to apply. Let there be prompt and thorough action on this subject as soon as the Legislature meets, and let there be attached to the bill to abate the evil an "emergency clause" declaring that whereas it is high time this species of corruption were stopped therefore this act shall take effect forthwith.

AMONG THE FISHERIES

We returned yesterday evening from a trip of some days down the Columbia river. One who passes up or down the river has now presented to him a scene quite different from that he might have seen a very few years since, or even last year, upon a similar journey. The number and capacity of the fisheries have increased from the small places engaged a few years ago in putting up salt fish in barrels to a dozen or more large establishments employing many hundreds of hands and putting up hundreds of thousands of cases of fresh canned salmon besides large amounts in barrels. It is estimated that the catch of the present year will bring in about one and a half millions of dollars. This will not greatly exceed the yield of last year but this fact is owing to the run being less this year than last. It is the experience of those who have been engaged for some time in this business, that some years the run of fish is much larger than others. This is one of the scarce years. But the extent to which the preparation for future operations have been pushed, gives assurance that the take hereafter will be much larger than heretofore, unless the supply shall be permanently diminished as some fear.

The entire work including the manufacture of cans and cases is done at the fisheries. The boats or ship he alongside the wharves which are attached to the several canneries and take the cases.

This is one of the most important, as it is one of the most productive industries of the State and with proper protection against wasteful and destructive modes of carrying it on, is destined long to remain a source of much wealth to our people.

Senators Fenton and Conkling have been exchanging compliments recently. The former rose in the Senate recently to deny that he had ever [illegible] he had Conkling by the throat and he dare not open his mouth against him (Fenton). Then Mr Conkling rose and said that he had never suspected his colleague of using such language etc adding that the report originated in an obscure print of a local and limited circulation. The New York Times makes this the occasion of a hard rap at Conkling. Among other things it says alluding to Conkling's vote on the bill to double the postage on newspapers: "Senator Conkling is at present engaged in the effort to suppress those public nuisances the newspapers and to establish a system under which a good obedient faithful organ would alone be able to exist." And the New York Times says: "The disdain with which Mr Conkling regards obscure prints of a local and limited circulation entitles him to the admiration and confidence of his fellow men."

The St Louis Globe says: "Mr Logan has been very quiet since the publication of the President's note to Mr Jones, but it is known that a lead pencil was picked up in the Capitol grounds last Sunday and it probably fell [illegible] asked the Senator from Illinois to [illegible] a memorandum book." Thereupon the Washington Chronicle innocently [illegible] editorially that [illegible] peddler has recently been found dead in the Capitol grounds and says its reporter could learn nothing about the occurrence hinted at by the Globe. This is one of the very mildest of Brother Harlan's stupidities.

There seems to be a square issue of veracity between Theodore Tilton and Plymouth Church. The Trustees of Mr Beecher's church deny that Tilton ever addressed to them a letter expressing his willingness and desire to answer any summons during the next thirty days, as a witness to testify concerning the charges against Mr Beecher. This we learn from the New York Times.

Mrs Audubon relict of the great naturalist died at Louisville Kentucky on the 18th of June, aged 88. She was a lady of great attainments and was the constant companion of her husband in his travels visiting with him the principal courts of Europe.

The Senate confirmed the nomination of Gen Edward M McCook by a majority of one vote. It is easy for the Senate to get rid of a distasteful subject.

The Boston Post gets off this neat one: Several dams gave way in Rhode Island yesterday after the vote for the Senatorship.

ANOTHER PLEA FOR REFORM

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

There is some legislation needed providing for the manner of obtaining jurors after the regular panel is exhausted. The practice now is for the Sheriffs or bailiffs to summon them from the by standers. With a large class of attorneys it has become a leading feature of their practice to have the juror they want present in court where the officer readily finds him. Possibly it is arranged with the officer to summon designated men. But if not, if when he shouts for jurors he finds A, B and C blocking up his way, he is likely to call them.

Further than this there are about every county seat more or less regular jurors—men who constantly hang about the Courts for the purpose of getting upon juries. Not a few of them make requests of the Sheriffs that they may be selected in case extra jurors are needed. It is hardly necessary to state that such men are not fit to serve and ought never to be taken. When the regular panel is exhausted, and more jurors are needed they should be drawn in the same manner as the others—taken from the body of the county without connivance of parties or otherwise, and without danger of falling upon the regular sitters—the jury bummers. In some of our counties at least the practices growing out of this system have become a serious evil.

THE ST LOUIS BRIDGE

On the St Louis Republican rests the awful responsibility for this one:

The view from the bridge by night is so new so commanding so grand so surrounded by interesting comparisons with the past and prophetic immensity of the future of St Louis that as with thousands of others we linger as in a dream of doubt. The dark rolling river so far below that it makes nervous people tremble and turn away the long line of lights on the leveé stretching down away to Carondelet the lights on the boats on the ferries in the great throbbing city as it rises tier on tier of houses as far as Fourth street and in East St Louis streaming through the trees and on trains as they come and go making their terminus there now but as they will come and go in the future over the great bridge, and under where we are standing now. It is a scene well worth the enjoying again and again as we saw it last night under a Meeker sky with its thin long lines of red and mouse colored clouds floating in a dark sea of green.

GENERAL NOTES

Mr Augustus Leonard of Western Missouri was fond of fun. He disguised himself in war paint and other fixings of an Indian and approached the cabin of one of his neighbors. The countenance of the corpse bore the look of antipated amusement as plainly as in life.—Louisville Courier Journal

Miss M I Ransom, of Cleveland, who some time since sold to Congress a portrait of Joshua R Giddings has painted Gen G H Thomas and desires to dispose of it in the same way. Old Pap Thomas is depicted in brand new clothes neat as if mounting guard at the White House on the rock of Chickamauga with the mountain scenery [illegible] sketched from nature on the spot. It is an enormous picture.

THE OLDEST CATHOLIC PRIEST.—The oldest Catholic Priest in North America is now stationed at St John's Church, Frederick, Md. the Rev John McElroy S J. He was ordained by Archbishop Carroll sixty years ago and has consequently spent half a century in the ministry. He is now 93 years old and although bowed down with the weight of three generations yet has sufficient strength to celebrate mass and assist at the services of the church. Some time since he became blind but after submitting to an operation in Baltimore his vision was restored.—C [illegible] Md News

And this from a Washington City paper:

Mr George A LaDow who was a successful candidate for Congress in the late election in Oregon astonishes everybody by his triumph over both his opponents. His nomination was a surprise to both parties and he made no canvass objecting principally on account of the unusual expense attending it. When asked why he did not enter the canvass he said "Why I went to Pendleton and made a speech there and it cost $10. If I should go down that to the Willamette and go to speechifying it would probably cost me $150."

Apropos of the recent whitewashing of which the ring paper has been making such a display, is this from the Boston Herald:

Until the Senate gets rid of its Hipple Mitchell the man who runs away from one wife to marry another why should the House bother about its polygamous Elder Cannon who runs away from none of his wives but supports them all in patriarchal style?

An individual lately committed suicide in a Parisian hotel. His headless body was found in his room together with a letter containing the following bewildering statement: "I was bored and I have killed myself. Let no one be accused of my death. Do not look for my head, I have hidden it myself in order not to be recognized."

THE NEW GOVERNOR OF COLORADO.—Washington, June 26.—General McCook to day received his commission and was sworn in as Governor of Colorado. He will reach Denver on the 1st of July and enter upon his duties.

The average annual expenditure of the members of the senior Class at Yale College is put down at $1,150.

THE DEMAND IN MAINE FOR PAMPHLETS AND NEWSPAPERS CONTAINING INFORMATION ABOUT OREGON

AUGUSTA Maine June 1 1874

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

I notice in your issue of June 6th the article on Immigration and thought it might be proper for [illegible] to add testimony even from this far off locality.

I have received from Hon J W Nesmith, Messrs Jones & Patterson of Salem and others descriptive pamphlets of your State which I have distributed among our people and may assure you that their perusal has created a very lively interest in your advantages. And as it has been announced through the Maine papers that it was about to remove with my family to Oregon I am overrun with letters from citizens and personal inquiries as to your advantages in illustrated progress and natural resources. The OREGONIAN and the Willamette Farmer which I receive weekly are eagerly sought.

I suggest that should you [illegible] to encourage immigration be formed in your State that an agent be sent through the leading railroad routes of New England to distribute documents for even a single trip, which documents should direct where each State or in New England such documents could be found and would be forwarded on application. I do not doubt it would be of practical advantage. I could have distributed a thousand volumes as well as the two or three dozen I have placed.

MUSICAL GEMS.--Mr Carr the gentlemanly manager of Gray's music store has laid on our table the following gems of music--vocal and instrumental--just issued from that well known house in San Francisco "Sailing" in the Moonlight written and composed by Wm H Langard "Dancing Waves" [illegible] Wellen instrumental "The Dream of Paradise, instrumental composed by [illegible] "My God, Permit Me Not" solo and quartette composed by H P Danks "John Anderson's Game," composed and sung by George L Osgood, "Sounds for the piano forte instrumental "Palm Sunday" words by Bertrand translated by [illegible] music by J Faure, "After Me," [illegible] by Miss Adah Richmond, written and composed by Frank W Egerton arranged by M H [illegible] "The Increase of Crime" words and arrangement by J C J "Just Touch the Harp Gently" as sung with the greatest success in Blue Beard by Miss Lydia Thompson and troupe words by S N Mitchell music by [illegible] "Minnie Darling I'll be Waiting" dedicated to Miss Dell Knower words by Frank Dumont music by George Dana "Up and Away March," instrumental by Dr Zikoff "If I were only Young Again" words and music by S W Tucker These choice selections enumerated and many others can be obtained by calling at Gray's Music Store

WHERE SHALL WE GO.--That is the momentous question which the head of the family must soon decide No true patriot in whose heart the sacred fires of liberty are supposed to be unquenched or unquenchable will dare falter in his duty or set the wretched example of staying at home on that glorious day To be recreant to his high trust of citizenship and fail to manifest the glory of his freedom to a stupid and down trodden world, would be a disgrace not to be mentioned or tolerated by any American citizen Therefore, the Granges of Washington, Yamhill and Multnomah counties cordially invite us all to meet them to celebrate the coming Fourth of July at Hillsboro Park. The Grangers will, for the first time in this State publicly appear in full regalia, with all the emblems of their Order in grand procession and glorious celebration Three hundred tables have already been provided to eat from, while ice-water pours out from five natural springs on the ground and dancing platforms swings from the tree tops and all else to enable all to have a most pleasant day Railroad fare only one dollar, children two bits, and this is the cheapest as well as the best lay out offered. Orations by Hon Thomas F Campbell, late People's candidate for Governor and J J Imbrie, Esq a Granger born and raised in Washington county

ONLY A "PURP."--George Ennis, a young man well known in Portland while walking in the lower portion of the city a few days ago, was suddenly attacked by a vicious canine, the property of John Murphy As a matter of self protection Ennis found it necessary to kill the savage brute on the spot This act greatly incensed the owner, who happened to be near by at the time Murphy came running out in a very excited manner and commanded Ennis in a peremptory tone to stop Thinking that to halt would be courting a difficulty with the owner the young man walked away with quickened footsteps At this action Murphy became furious He procured a shotgun and pursuing the slayer of his beloved "purp," threatened to let day light through him. Ennis fled and having eluded his enraged pursuer, entered complaint against him and procured his arrest on a charge of threatening to kill Yesterday morning the case came up in Police Court, An examination was had, resulting in the discharge of the defendant, after his having promised not to carry his threat into execution

CELEBRATION AT SULLIVAN'S SPRINGS.--The temperance people of East Portland and vicinity will hold a picnic celebration on the Fourth of July at Sullivan's Springs Rev G H Atkinson will deliver the address and Rev N Doane will read the Declaration of Independence. SCHOOL DIRECTORS' MEETINGS.

During the past month several meetings have been held by the Board of Directors of School District No 1 From the proceedings of these meetings we extract the following which may be of interest to the public

The subject under discussion for which the meeting of May 9th was called was in reference to the division of the District by setting off all that portion lying south of the city limits After a careful consideration of the matter the following preamble and resolution was adopted

WHEREAS A majority of taxpayers of School District No 1 have petitioned the County Superintendent of Public Instruction to divide the District by setting off all that portion of said District lying south of the city of Portland and whereas the County Superintendent has this day appeared before the Board of School Directors and requested to comply with said petition by cutting off said portion of the District on condition that the Board of Directors guarantee to employ a teacher for the set off limited within the territory so set off for a term of three months therefore be it

Resolved, That the Board accept the proposition and hereby authorize the employment of a teacher for the said term to commence Monday the 1st day of June, 1874 and end August 1 1874

On motion Miss Mary Pollock was elected teacher for the aforesaid school at a salary of $50 per month

The bids for furnishing wood for the District for the coming School year were opened at a meeting held June 8th and awarded as follows Slabwood to O F Butler at $3 per cord ash wood to J Sorensen at $4 12½ per cord oak wood to J Sorensen at $4 [illegible] per cord

A communication from Mr Henry Shaul in reference to the use of a room in the Central School building, was received and placed on file

On motion J G Glenn was authorized to receive bids for repairs to the Harrison Street School building,

The following preamble and resolution was presented by J C Ainsworth at a meeting held June 22d, and unanimously adopted

WHEREAS The books and papers of this District having become of such importance and which will continue to accumulate from year to year it is deemed expedient to provide some place where they will be protected from fire or from loss in any other manner therefore be it

Resolved That a good iron or steel safe be purchased for the use of the Clerk of the District said safe to be of sufficient capacity to contain all such books and papers

On motion of J C Ainsworth A H M[illegible] was appointed committee to purchase such safe

On motion of J C Ainsworth all bills ordered against the District should be made out in duplicate--Carried

The committee appointed to purchase safe for the District reported--at a meeting held June 29th--having purchased a large double door fire proof Filton & McFarland safe weighing 3150 pounds for the sum of $250

THE COMET.

Last evening for the first time since the advent of this celestial stranger in the northern heavens, we were favored with a glimpse through a glass--not smoked--darkly Indeed the squint was necessarily so brief and imperfect that our opportunities for discovering the position of the comet its velocity and the length of time ere its bump against Old Mother Earth, was very unsatisfactory and would not compare favorably with the observations made by the discoverer M Coggia However, the comet was plainly visible to the naked eye, and aided by the magnifying power of an opera or field glass one could obtain a tolerable good view of this nebulous wanderer of the heavens, Much has been said of late concerning his cometship and we suppose the public are pretty well acquainted with its position and movements The following may be of some interest to readers This comet was discovered by M Coggia at Marseilles on the 17th of last April, and by way of distinction is called Comet II of 1874 The comet is approaching the earth though it will pass at an enormous distance, its movements being towards the left its right ascension increasing at the rate of about half a degree per day, with a slight degree of declination As it approaches the earth its apparent size and brilliancy will increase so that during the latter part of July and the early part of August it will probably form a very attractive spectacle on a clear night An examination with a telescope of four and a half inches aperture will not reveal the existence of a well defined nucleus stars being seen through it The apparent diameter of the head is nearly equal to the planet Jupiter, and the length of the tail nearly one degree, or twice the apparent diameter of the full moon It can now be seen with a good opera glass, or even with the naked eye when the weather is favorable after its exact location has been determined Its tail is directed nearly toward the zenith, if seen through an opera glass, but towards the horizon if seen through a telescope of two or three inches in aperture, as the appearance of the object is inverted by the crossing of the rays within the telescope Astronomers assure us that Coggia's comet will be harmless, for its course lies out of the earth's orbit

The following resolution was offered by J K Gill and after considerable discussion was adopted

Resolved That it is the sense of this Convention that the Executive Committee ought to [illegible] programme published complete [illegible] for its distribution [illegible] one month [illegible] of this Convention

STATISTICAL REPORT

The following statistical report was read and adopted

Statistical report of Sunday Schools of Oregon from June 9 1873 to the year ending May 1 1874

Total number of [illegible]

Total number enrolled including officers and teachers

Total number of [illegible]

Total number of [illegible]

Total [illegible]

Total number of [illegible] month [illegible] Twenty-eight [illegible]

Much of the foregoing report is taken from the official minutes or yearbooks of the Baptist and Methodist denominations, other denominations failing to send in records to the Secretary [illegible] to do so. The general statistics from [illegible] schools reported directly to the convention is exceedingly small, and it is hoped that in addition to the statistics furnished to the Secretary directly by the Sunday Schools in according to the form prescribed by the Executive Committee that each denomination will forward to the new Secretary a copy of their minutes of the latest date that will include Sunday School report

This matter of statistics is important and interesting and will continue to be more so from year to year to show our growth in these several departments We urge therefore upon delegates that they make to this Convention as full a report now as possible and forward to the new Statistical Secretary all the additional information they may be able to obtain hereafter

I J NORTHRUP
Statistical Secretary

At the conclusion of the reading of the above report the Convention rose and sung a hymn Rev Mr McElroy as the newly elected President of the Convention was requested to come forward and assume the Chair The reverend gentleman did so Mr Northrup retiring On assuming the Chair Mr McElroy returned his thanks for the honor conferred

Rev Geo W Izer was then introduced and addressed the Convention for a short time on the subject of "International or other uniform series of lessons" The speaker strongly favored uniform series of lessons for Sunday Schools

At the conclusion of the address an opportunity was offered delegates to express their views on the subject The privilege was improved and short addresses were made by Revs Hoberg Lindsley Messrs Gill Northrup Walthams and Rev A H [illegible]

Mr Northrup stated that arrangements had been partially effected for the holding of a sociable and reunion of all the delegates present at some place yet to be selected on Wednesday evening at the conclusion of the exercises The following ladies were appointed to make all necessary arrangements for the reunion Mrs Wm Wadhams Mrs Mann Mrs I M Warren Mrs Byron Cardwell Mrs I J Northrup Mrs A C Gibbs Mrs O B Gibson Mrs R Williams Mrs C W Burrage Mrs Barnard

The doxology was sung benediction pronounced by Rev Mr Hoberg and the Convention took a recess until 2 o clock

AFTERNOON SESSION

Convention met at the usual hour The first thing in order was the reports from the various schools represented by delegates The roll was called and brief reports from a number of the schools were read These reports were all of a highly satisfactory and encouraging character A large portion of the time allotted to the afternoon session was consumed in the reading of the reports

ADDRESS BY MR GILL

Mr J K Gill was introduced and addressed the Convention on the subject of "Trained Teachers and how to obtain them" The speaker divided the subject into two parts speaking first of trained teachers and in the second place of how to obtain them He defined the well trained teacher as prompt persevering humble and prayerful observant of the rules of the schools and fairly educated in secular and religious knowledge To secure such teachers there were at the present time four principal agencies namely the Bible class the weekly teachers meeting the Normal class and the Convention From the Bible class alone must come teachers in school when no better provision was made When a person was transferred from the Bible class to be made a regular teacher if he felt his preparation insufficient he could derive valuable aid from such books as Gray's Topics and House Hand Book Class observation and recourse to such books would enable any one with a zealous love for the work to make of himself a successful Sunday School teacher He thought the weekly teachers meeting possessed greater advantages than the Bible class done Wherever practical such a meeting should be instituted and once begun should never be discontinued Any Sunday School of six or more teachers should have such an organization Different teachers should be selected to conduct the meeting from week to week The normal class in the opinion of Mr Gill afforded the very best facilities for supplying trained teachers Whenever practical such a class ought not to be confined simply to schools in the more populous cities of the Eastern States Portland Salem, Oregon City, The Dalles and Olympia could enjoy its privileges as well as New York Boston or Philadelphia It was not intended to take the place of the regular lesson meeting To be a success it must be regularly organized with its chief leader secular teacher etc Its principal advantage was that it could take up and pursue any course of bible study Few books expressly for its use were constantly appearing The plan of operation was simple First agree upon a course of study then secure the text book, assign lessons and conduct recitations It was desirable to appoint the leader one or two weeks ahead and if it could be done without injury to the class the teachers should be changed frequently The Normal class not only served to thoroughly prepare teachers but to keep young men in Sunday School who would otherwise quietly drop out of the school entirely [illegible] A grand feature of it was that it might enlist the attention of the whole church and need not be confined to Sunday School teachers alone There was not to say a well organized Normal class within the limits represented by the Convention and he hoped that there would be at least two before next meeting He briefly referred to the fourth agency--the Convention--remarking that its uses and advantages were so fully and ably discussed in the [illegible] address that it was [illegible] [illegible] all together and [illegible] view with regard to the Sunday school work it would be strange if they [illegible] to their [illegible] without a better preparation for the discharge of their duty

EVENING SESSION

At the hour designated--7 30 o clock the Convention met Rev Mr McElroy in the chair Some time was spent in song service after which Mr W [illegible] made an eloquent and telling [illegible] a paper Rev A H Brodhead temporary pastor of the First Congregational church was introduced and delivered an earnest [illegible] and able address

On motion of Mr Hall [illegible] was ordered published

There was a large attendance at the evening, the church being crowded to its fullest capacity The attention throughout was earnest and an encouraging degree of interest prevailed during the evening

The convention to-day will [illegible] in the meeting of the Taylor street M E Church to which the public is cordially invited

[illegible] after the closing exercises of this evening a reunion and sociable will be held in the basement of the First Congregational Church to which every delegate of the Convention is cordially invited

ASTORIA ITEMS

The fisheries in the immediate vicinity of Astoria are doing a better business than here to for the catch of salmon having increased in the past few days

Three men came near losing their lives on Monday through having about too much tussel They were fishermen who were proceeding up the river to Hume's fishery in a small sail boat and after taking in a number of drinks at an Astoria saloon they set off They managed to get a pretty good start when over the boat went, two of the party clinging to the rigging while the third struck out for shore fully a mile off It so happened that a Mr [illegible] was sailing in the vicinity which directed his boat toward the wreck whom he took on board and afterwards the other The men came to Astoria with [illegible] showing that they had been thoroughly reconstructed after their involuntary bath

A sad accident made occur [illegible] Pillar Rock fishery a few miles above Astoria on Monday morning The particulars as we are told them are as follows It seems that a young man [illegible] Wm Davis aged about 21 years had been out carousing the night previous and when he came down to breakfast on Monday morning he complained of being unwell His brother who is a younger man and the manager of the fishery said that he (William) had better go to his room as under the circumstances he was not in a condition to work that day William acted on his brother's advice and within half an hour a man came to William's brother to say that William had been killed The brother at once repaired to the room only to find the story too true It appears that after William left the breakfast table he went to his room and while there he broke open his trunk his brother having the key and took there from a revolver The position of the deceased when found indicated that he had laid down on the bed and fired the contents of the pistol directly through his head just above the eye the ball coming out behind Death must have been instantaneous The deceased was removed to Astoria for burial Temporary depression of spirits is the only cause assigned for the rash deed Deceased was an industrious young man and a member of the order of Odd Fellows The father and another brother of the deceased are engaged at a fishery below Astoria

THE INVALID--A PEN PICTURE.

See her pallid countenance but a short time ago the picture of ruddy health the envy of the school and the pride of the household She was always welcomed by her schoolmates for her lithe form and pleasing disposition carried cheerfulness into their ranks Diligent punctual and exemplary obedient and graceful at home she won the hearts of all. But alas we are sorrowed Those rosy cheeks and ruddy lips are blanched by Consumption The voice once so enchanting in laugh and song is feeble husky and supplanted by a hollow cough Let us approach her couch gently and take her hand Do not shudder because of the feeble and passionless grasp The hand once so hearty and plump is emaciated and shows bony outlines while the cords and tortuous veins are plainly mapped upon the surface The pulse that bounded with repletion, carrying vigor to the whole system and imparting life, beauty vivacity health and strength is delicate to the touch The feeble heart cannot propel the thin scanty blood with force Must we lose her while yet in her teens? Companions and friends gather around with words of cheer and consolation and depart with moistened eyes and silent steps Must we lose her? No! there is relief We can stay this destroyer of our happiness and not suffer the loss of so bright a gem Something more is required now than dietary and hygienic observance for nature calls for aid and she shall have it Take this pleasant medicine It is invigorating, How it allays the irritable cough improves the appetite and digestion and sends a healthy tingle through the frame The blood is enriched nervous force increased and the heart bounds with new impulse See her face brighten by degrees the color is returning her voice is getting clearer and pleasant words are spoken Her strength falters yet but is gaining Let us take her out in the warm sunshine In a short time she will be able to go without our aid a cheerful girl This delightful medicine must be God blessed This restoring health to our loved one She is suffering from her sickness sweeter and nobler than before and Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery must have the credit [illegible] rated her.

S R [illegible] druggist of West Union O says that Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has effected a wonderful cure of Consumption in his neighborhood

ACCIDENT

What strange unreasoned impulse takes
By devious ways our aimless feet,
The unimagined doom to meet
For still the fatal thunder breaks

From skies that promise peace We go
Scarce e'en on trivial errand bent
And heed not and the stroke is sent
That lays life's pleasant fabric low —

Long days of dear domestic peace
Love into closer union grown
The newer knowledge made our own
And ever as the years increase

Some clearer height of [illegible] won
And schemes of joyous travel planned
To holy place or classic land
Or marvel of the midnight sun —

All things that counterchange our days
With varied light of toil and care —
Labors as joys and cares that please
Constraint of duty sweet to praise

One step and over love and light,
Things hoped and things achieved the all
We are and were to be will fall
The mourn less unremembered night

A BRIDE OF AN EVENING

A YOUNG LADY FORCED INTO A MARRIAGE AGAINST HER WISH DESERTS HER HUSBAND AN HOUR AFTER THE CEREMONY—A GREAT SENSATION ON THE SAN JOAQUIN

[From the San Francisco Chronicle June 2[illegible]

Near Stockton, on a splendid ranch lives a young farmer named James S Bunham who has recently been the hero or rather the victim, of a romantic event which will go far to teach him that love is a commodity that can not be bought Some time since while on a visit to Stockton, Bunham met a young lady named Miss Ida Leonard the stepdaughter of a man named Hilbert who, though once a wealthy man is now reduced to a condition of comparative poverty

LAYING SIEGE

Miss Leonard is a pretty girl of twenty or so and quite attractive in her manners Bunham fell in love at first sight. Miss Ida didn't She was not at all charmed, for two reasons viz that she considered Mr Bunham a trifle soft, and, besides, she thought a good deal of somebody else. The latter reason alone should have deterred Mr Bunham, but it didn't. He relied on his gold—his bright, hard gold—his broad acres—his youth and, above all, on the persuasive powers of his mamma.

THE FIRST PARALLEL

He at once enlisted his mamma in the cause She embraced it eagerly and laid her plans for conducting the siege with the skill of a Royal Engineer She invited Miss Leonard to make a trip with her to San Francisco. The young lady accepted They had a delightful time, and the crafty mamma advanced her parallel a trifle closer to the citadel by the present of a shawl and a few trinkets They finally reached Stockton, on their return, and then the besieging mamma invited the young lady out to her ranch to spend a week

THE SECOND PARALLEL

The young lady accepted again and went like a lamb to the slaughter Young Bunham blushed and looked sheepish when she made her appearance, and for a day or two he gave her a wide berth Soon, however, he plucked up courage and invited her to ride—then to a rural picnic (not a hop in the woods)—then out to see the beautiful sheep, and the meek and lowly cows, and to hear the twitter of the wrens in the cypress Not having anything better to do, and not believing for an instant she was to be annoyed, she accepted these invitations, and made herself as agreeable to the young man as the nature of their acquaintance warranted

AN ASSAULT—REPULSE

One day he invited his charming companion out for a stroll on the banks of the beautiful San Joaquin They sat down on the soft warm sand and began to commune At least Bunham did He coughed a little and tweedled his thumbs then he tweedled his thumbs and coughed Then he dug his boot heels into the sand and began to get red. Finally he poured forth his soul in liquid streams, and, sinking his knees in the sand, told the young lady in agonized tones that he was rich and he loved her and longed to marry her. Miss Leonard listened with feelings of pity at first, then of anger. The young lady became furious She finally walked indignantly away and the young man then realized that the assault had failed.

REINFORCEMENTS AND NEW PARALLELS

A consultation of engineers then took place, and it was resolved to renew the siege with all the modern appliances which could be brought to bear. The citadel should not flaunt its banners defiantly in the faces of the besiegers. The first piece of strategy in the new campaign was a bold effort to corrupt the garrison of the enemy The young lady's stepfather is—a stepfather He was believed to be quite ready to betray the fortress, and to him, therefore Bunham went. He offered to put in a crop for him and offered other inducements of an enticing nature if he would force Miss Ida into capitulation at once

AN ATTACK OF THE ALLIED FORCES

He consented at once and began by refusing to allow his daughter's real lover to again enter the house Shortly afterwards young Bunham again appeared, and the siege was renewed with the full aid of the allied forces. The step-father pleaded with Miss Ida to surrender She refused. The young man begged and begged, and she finally gave way a trifle to rid herself of importunity and think of a plan by which she could raise the siege At that instant the reserves, which had been stationed conveniently near, entered the room Bunham yelled out "Oh, mother, she's mine! she's mine!"

The old lady rushed on the young lady and embraced her fervently, while the latter, in a torrent of tears, cried "Oh, no! not yet! I cannot! I cannot!"

ARRIVAL OF A SUPPLY TRAIN.

By this time Mr. Hilbert had succeeded in talking over the young lady's mother She joined her entreaties with those of her husband and insisted upon this magnificent match Then entered Bunham with a splendid watch and chain for his bride elect, and accompanied by old man Bunham with a bag of grain for Mr Hilbert's chickens. Then comes in good Mrs Bunham with a buggy and pair and seizing her daughter in law elect, took her to the milliner's and dressmaker's and ordered her a splendid trousseau. Meanwhile Miss Ida repeatedly told the young man that her father and mother might force her into marriage but she would never, never live with him She would kill herself first.

THE CHAPLAIN'S TREASON—ALL IS LOST!

Among other things she consulted a young lady friend and had her go to and tell the [illegible]er the Rev Mr Morse, that Miss Ida was violently opposed to the match, and if married to Bunham against her wishes she would not live with him one hour Mr Morse [illegible] that it was a child's duty to obey her parents in such matters, and if her father [illegible] upon him to perform the ceremony he would certainly do it When this was [illegible] to the young lady her last hope was gone and she resolved to submit quietly to her fate Her parents had told that it was her solemn duty to obey them until her marriage. Immediately after the ceremony this obligation, they said, ceased She remembered this, and determined to act upon it

SURRENDER—BUT REFUSAL TO MARCH OUT OF THE CITADEL

About ten days ago the wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev Mr Morse They had a lively time at the Hilbert mansion, late supper, dancing and so on About midnight young Bunham began to get terrible sleepy. He thought that by that time his new wife must be getting terribly sleepy too, and he started to find her He hinted that he was getting terribly sleepy She didn't take the hint She wasn't a bit sleepy, she said, and wanted to dance some more After a while he went to her again Then she went to her mother and told her new husband to go off about his business that she would have none of him. At this interesting juncture Bunham took counsel with his mamma at which it was decided to gratify the young lady in her whim for this night only"

AN UNPRECEDENTED DEMAND

The next day the late besieging forces appeared at the Hilbert Castle and demanded an unconditional surrender of the garrison without further parley Miss Leonard, or Mrs Bunham, as she is now, flatly refused. She said that she had gone through the ceremony of marriage for the sake of obeying her parents. She was no longer under obligation to them, and would now act for herself She then told him that she would never be a wife to him—never live with him—and he might as well "get up and dust" without further delay. The minister was then brought in, but all to no purpose. The young lady refused, and has ever since refused to have anything to do with her liege lord By this time the young man had got angry He told her to go to the deuce, but first demanded the return of everything he and his mother had given her—even to the very under linen she stood in Of course this singular demand was complied with, and then the besieging forces withdrew from the fortress.

A [illegible]

A few days ago Mr Bunham rushed into the office of the Stockton Independent with the following advertisement

Though but the briefest synopsis of the currency bill has yet reached us from which we can gather it seems that the bill fixes the volume of legal tenders at $382 000 000 and legalizes the issue of $26 000 000 put out by Mr Richardson late Secretary of the Treasury, without precedent or authority of law at the time The sequence of the bill is a prohibition of a further issuance from the remaining reserves as the amount of circulation is positively fixed by the times flush or stringent The bill also provides for a redistribution of national bank notes to the extent of $52,000,000 among the national banks so that those in some States now having an excess shall furnish of their surplus to those in other States that are short of their legal allowance In consonance with an opinion previously expressed in these columns, we can join with our San Francisco exchanges in the claim that this "redistribution" is a superfluous measure as in the course of time and in conformity with all experience money will gravitate towards the business centers and redistribution amounts to nothing A feature of the bill which the people at large will not regard with favor, is the repeal of the law compelling the national banks to keep on hand a reserve of twenty five per cent. of legal tender The friends of the bill claim that bonds deposited in the United States treasury is a sufficient security to depositors in the banks but it will be difficult to convince such depositors that it is wise in the Government to take away any part of their security, however sufficient the remainder may be The banks will undoubtedly hold a reserve large enough to guarantee their safety but over and above what will be required for that purpose, it will release in the neighborhood of $40 000 000 in legal tenders and that is an important gain for the inflationists The saving clause of the act is that it must be referred to the people for their affirmation or rejection, and the Congressional election of the coming fall will settle the question beyond recall We shall then probably witness a scattering of the inflation forces leading to final extermination

The San Francisco Bulletin as sound a paper on national finances as there is on this coast says

The theory upon which the National Banks are founded is that there ought to be so much currency per head—that is to say, that there ought to be a specified sum to enable each individual to effect an exchange of his products But there are a great many individuals who have nothing to exchange And these individuals are more numerous in some States than in others Hence this paper currency will not stay adjusted Probably three years from date there will be as much necessity for a redistribution as there is now—Something like what would happen in case the Communists had full swing is here transpiring One division of property would not be enough Some members of the community would not work, and would lose their shares The quality would again begin and continue until another distribution was ordered. The redistribution of currency involves phenomena somewhat similar The greenbacks have a tendency to flow toward certain money centers They are as certain to flow in that direction as water is to seek its level Congress is not likely therefore to be able to secure a permanent adjustment until it provides some adhesive substance to keep the greenbacks in the localities to which they are assigned It is besides not very clear that redistribution is not a violation of the laws of finance instead of a help and assistance to them Greenbacks will accumulate at the points where they are needed in spite of any theory of distribution by the head But still, if this legislation for forcing water to run up hill be satisfactory to everybody there can be no reason for urging any very violent objection to it The reason is that the water will continue to flow down hill all the same

As to the share of the redistributed currency which falls to Oregon some speculation is heard as to the hands in which it will probably fall but no definite information on this point is yet made public The law, as we understand it now allows the banks already established, to take the share allotted to the different States and Territories If this be correct the First National Bank of this city will be entitled to the amount allowed Oregon if the bank [illegible] deposit the requisite bonds

The Wool Market.

This branch of trade is perhaps the most active of any in our city The daily receipts both by rail and boat are quite large and very considerable shipments are made by each outgoing steamer A close observer estimates that at least 1 0 0 000 pounds has been brought to this market so far this season A great proportion of this has been sent to San Francisco and the East, while the remainder has gone to our State mills or is in store awaiting transportation About 80 000 pounds will be sent below on the steamer now due from San Francisco Prices keep up beyond the expectation of buyers some of the finest and most neatly packed lots selling at 30c [illegible] We see no reason to hope for anything better this year and are inclined to the opinion that the market will decline rather than appreciate as the season advances A just and quite broad discrimination is made between well packed clean lots and those composed of mixed fleeces poorly washed and loosely packed The latter will not command within 5 or 10 cents a lb of the price of clean Wool growers will find themselves well paid for all trouble in thoroughly cleaning their product before putting it on the market

The Sound country is now shipping a large quantity of wool to San Francisco and thence to the East The last steamer from Victoria carried [illegible] pounds destined for Boston

Towage and Tonnage.

This is usually considered the last day of the harvest year but it is not actually so the present [illegible] son The old crop of Wheat is not quite exhausted nor is the new at hand Our market maintains the quietness heretofore noticed no offers being made and no buyers urgent in effecting purchase We quote nominally at $1 45 for shipping and $1 [illegible] for milling. The Liverpool market, at last advices was slightly improved The bark Achievement now discharging ballast will be the last foreign-bound vessel to load with the old crop and she will leave a comparatively small amount in the way of a surplus We learn that the various warehouses up the Valley are all nearly empty and that it would be difficult to buy as much as a cargo at any price along the lines of transportation The new crop is coming on finely and should the present fair weather continue as it may until harvest is over the former hopes of an abundant yield will be more than realized It is now estimated that at least 25 per cent more Wheat will be grown this year in Oregon than was last The questions now most interesting to Wheat growers is how much will be paid for the product and what are the chances for a liberal supply of tonnage Information reaching us from the most reliable sources induces us to believe that owing to a heavy yield in nearly all the Wheat growing sections of the world this cereal will not be as high in 1874 as in 1873 There seems to be but few exceptions to the general rule of good crops As to tonnage, there is a greater number of vessels heading for the Pacific coast to obtain cargoes and more to this point than ever at once before but so far there appears to be but little or no reduction in the rates for tonnage The exporters here have not secured any late charters as far as we know but an indication of what rates would be, can be seen from the fact that the latest charter reported in San Francisco, from that port to England was at £4 per ton The usual estimate heretofore has been to add £1 per ton for vessels loading here, but we believe that the difference is gradually growing less, as there is no reason why it should not. The small amount of the old crop which is to be carried over this year is a proof to us that tonnage will be found for our exportable surplus and that one year hence will find but little more Wheat in the State than now Our prospects for shipping are certainly better now than they were one year ago

Shipping Intelligence.

The steamship California for Victoria Fort Wrangell and Sitka will sail tomorrow afternoon with freight and passengers

The British bark Achievement under command of Capt Millard arrived from San Francisco this morning in ballast She comes under charter to [illegible] Kinney & Sons Salem and will load grain and flour for the United Kingdom [illegible]
